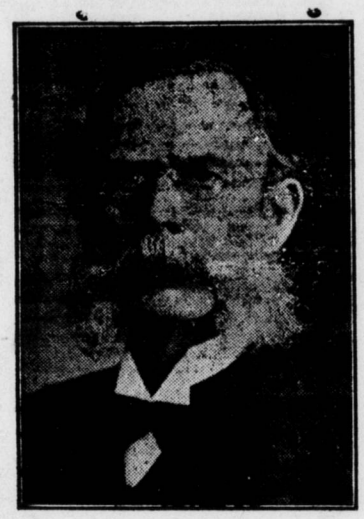
ESTABLISHED BY C. B. GOULD, MARCH, 1866. "Liberty and Union, One and Inseparable."—WEBSTER. TERMS: $2.00—$1.50 IN ADVANCE.

VOL. 44 EMPORIUM, PA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1910. NO. 32.

Congressman Barclay Rapidly Improving.



Our popular and faithful Congressman, Hon. C. F. Barclay, has been spending considerable time in this county within the past month, arranging his business affairs and shipping part of his goods to Washington tn order to be prepared for the opening session of Congress. Mr. Barclay's term of office will expire with March 4th, 1911, yet he is just as careful and energetic to comply with the wishes of his constituents as though he had four years to serve.

The PRESS enjoyed a social call from Mr. Barclay on Wednesday and we are greatly pleased to note how rapidly his health has improved which is indeed very gratifying to his friends. In reply to the false reports that Mr. Barclay would leave Cameron county and permanently locate in Washington we desire to correct the false impression, Mr. Barclay informing us that while his home will be with his sister during his service in Congress, his home is in Cameron county, where it has been for so many years. Of course what the future might tell no one can say.

The Delineator for October.

In the Delineator for October Erman J. Ridgway uses, the words, "Mein Freund," spoken by the Kaiser to Mr. Roosevelt, as a text for editorials that reveal the strong personality which is shaping the magazine on broader lines each month.

The leading article of the month is a description of "Woman's Fight Against Graft in San Francisco," by Elizabeth Gerherding, who was one of the leaders of the Women's League of Justice. Mrs. Gerherding's startling story of what happened to the California reformers is really a tale of a modern inquisition in which many an advocate of civic righteousness suffered social and commercial martyrdom. Such a daring and circumstantial arraignment of corrupt government never has been published in any magazine that makes a direct appeal to women.

"The State Fair," by E. W. Randall and William Kirkland is a study of the development of the educational possibilities of the annual events that once meant a combination of vegetable exhibits and horse races. The second instalment of Anne Forsythe's experiences while "Seven Times a Servant," sets forth what happened to the college girl when she tried to be a waitress in a New York apartment. Emily Post answers the question, "What Makes A Young Girl Popular?" and Gwendolen Overton writes of "The Exclusive Society of Mexico."

The fiction includes "Each in His Own Tongue" by Louisa M. Montgomery, a tale of rare quality; "The Harnessing of Pegasus," by Grace MacGowan Cooke, one of the author's best short stories, and "Mrs. Bankhurst to Dinner," a charming bit of comedy. "The Unforeseen," a serial by Mary Stewart Cutting, reaches a climax of compelling interest.

"The Man's Magazine page is, as usual, amusing and original, a clever bit of burlesque that persons of every class will enjoy.

If you want a delicious sundae ask for "Quite the Thing". Something new. SEGER & COMPANY.

Were the only living ex-president a member of the President's Cabinet, as suggested, it is quite certain the first personal pronoun would figure largely in the discussion.

WANTED—An apprentice girl, at Ludlams.

A Pastors' Congress to be Held in Altoona.

A unique feature of the coming State Sabbath School Convention to be held in Altoona, October 12, 13 and 14, will be a Pastor's Congress. The call has gone out to every pastor in the State inviting him to attend this Congress. There are about eight thousand ministers serving charges in Pennsylvania. The Congress in Altoona will bring together ministers representing all denominations. The theme of the Congress will be "Pastoral Leadership in Sunday School Evangelism."

The Sunday School to-day is looked upon as the greatest evangelizing agency in the Church, and greater attention must be given in securing proper conditions under which the Sunday School can do its work. Conservation of effort as well as results is a Sunday School problem of vital interest to all ministers.

W. G. Landes, with headquarters in the Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, is the General Secretary of the State organization; and Mr. Alexander Findley, of Altoona, has charge of the local arrangements for the Congress.

The Sunday School platform brings all denominations together, and this Congress for pastors will no doubt be largely attended. Prominent clergymen from this State and other States will address the Congress.

Krise—McQuaide.

Miss Sophia Krise, of this place, and Mr. Joseph McQuaide, of Jersey Shore, were quietly married at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Donovon on Fourth street, last Sunday, at noon. The Rev. Father T. B. Downey, Rector of St. Mark's Catholic Church, performed the ceremony. Miss Mayme Farrell and Mr. Harry McQuaide, brother of the groom, attended the bridal couple. Only the immediate friends witnessed the ceremony. After a bountiful dinner the happy couple departed on the afternoon train, for Renovo, where they were guests of the groom's parents. After a short honeymoon they will take up their residence at Jersey Shore, where the groom holds a good position. Mr. McQuaide was formerly employed in the tonsorial parlors of Mr. Edward Blinzler and has many friends at this place. Miss Krise, now Mrs. McQuaide, has been a resident of Emporium for some time and is popular with all who know her. We extend congratulations. Mrs. McQuaide, mother of the groom, of Renovo, was in atttendance at the wedding.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

INGERSOLL

WALTER INGERSOLL died on Wednesday morning, September 14th, at about eight o'clock, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hattie Tyler, at Roulette, Pa. Deceased was born at Dutchess county, N. Y., eighty years ago. Mr. Ingersoll, always followed the occupation of a farmer and since the death of his wife, which took place about thirty years ago, he has made his home with his children, yet never being dependent on them. He worked in the woods until about two weeks previous to his death. About one week prior to his demise he complained of stomach trouble and a physician was called, but he had lived his allotted time and all aid proved to no avail and on the above stated time he peacefully passed away. The funeral took place last Friday afternoon from the residence of his daughter, at whose home he died and interment was made at Roulette. He is survived by the following children: Mrs. Hattie Tyler, Roulette; Mrs. Lizzie Waterman, Horward, N. Y.; Messrs. Henry, Fort Wayne, Ind; Edward, Glenn Hazel, Pa., and Andrew, this place.

WILEY.

MARY LOUISE WILEY, the second daughter of Grant S. and Mary A. Wiley, died at the family home at Austin, Pa., Monday morning at three o'clock, after a very short illness of about six hours. The baby was born February 28, 1910, and was therefore six months and 26 days old. The funeral service was held at the home on Wednesday morning and the remains were brought to Emporium, arriving here on the noon train. Interment was made in the Wiley burial plot, in the Newton Cemetery. The PRESS deeply sympathizes with the bereaved parents.

A Duty to The President.

President Taft's campaign letter makes a good impression and is well received. It recognizes no line of division in the Republican party. It points out what great work has been accomplished since his inauguration and what remains to do. What was done was accomplished because the President was supported by Congress. If the other Republican pledges are to be redeemed it must be done by another Republican Congress. In no other way can progress be made during this administration, as a Democratic House means a deadlock and reaction, says the Phil'a Press.

If the Republicans are to present a full record on which to ask the endorsement of the people in 1912 they must elect a Republican House of Representatives in the next Congress. The Senate will continue Republican, but division, unreasoning criticism, and fault-finding among Republicans make the political complexion of the next House a matter of doubt. There should be no doubt. The Republicans have the votes to make the House clearly and strongly Republican. It is only a question of getting together and giving a loyal support to the kindly wise President whom their suffrage placed in responsibility and power.

The election of a Republican House is a duty owed to a Republican President. To leave him without a support in Congress for half of his term and without any cause would not be treating the President right. He has done nothing to forfeit Republican confidence. On the contrary he has done everything that should confirm and strengthen it. A House of Representatives without a clear Republican majority means two years of blocked legislation, of marking time and political speechmaking preparatory to the next Presidential campaign.

President Taft deserves better than this. His admirable straightforward letter of achievement shows what good use he has made of the short opportunity that has been given him to secure results. It is also a powerful argument why the Republicans of the country should sink local differences and unite all their strength to secure a Republican majority in the next House of Representatives.

We Have Our Money Up.

The St. Marys base ball team went to Emporium Friday to play a game of base ball. The game was a friendly one from the start but as it progressed it was plain to see that the man selected by Emporium team to handle the indicator had never seen a base ball game or knew anything about the book of rules, as a result of which our team was defeated by score of 5 to 4. Our boys wish us to announce that if Emporium can get together $100, and a square umpire they will show them what real base ball is. Here is a chance for Emporium to get one hundred dollars; we have our money up can you raise the same amount?—St. Marys Press.

What say you, boys? Do yon care to bother with them.

The census returns now coming in steadily leave no doubt that the country is growing in population at a rapid rate. The gains in some of the cities are very notable, several of the little places having made remarkable advancement in the last ten years. This growth is really more significant in various ways than the increases in the larger cities, for it shows local thrift and prosperity. Study of the latest census returns must help to dissipate any pessimistic ideas as to the condition of the country.

An English lad was sentenced to jail for picking a flower from a railroad right of way, that he might decorate his father's grave. And comparing conditions in America and England—

Rhode Island is "little, but Oh, my!" She is the first to come to the front with a complete census showing this year, and she reports the very substantial gain of 26.6 per cent. in population since 1900. That is setting a swift pace, and if the rest of the country does as well there is no doubt that the 90,000,000 mark will be reached.

ON PARTY'S RECORD

REPUBLICANS WILL WIN IN COMING ELECTIONS.

Universal Prosperity, Largely Due to Wise Administration of the Country's Affairs, Is Bound to Have Its Effect.

There is just now a vast amount of guessing being done concerning the final lineup in national politics and concerning the plans and purposes of two very influential actors. This is the formulative stage of the campaign when, lacking facts, an immense amount of superfervid political fiction is being put afloat.

The Democratic organization the country over is like Bre'r Rabbit—"Layin' low and sayin' nothin'." But something must be said finally; the Democracy must this year make its usual attempt to explain what it stands for, and when this explanation shall be given out it will immediately become apparent that the word does not square with the deed—that is to say, the Democratic platform declarations will contain the usual perfunctory commitments concerning a tariff for revenue, with a protective principle entirely eliminated. And then, by reference to the extra session records of the Democratic representatives in the Sixty-first congress, it will be possible to show that there were mighty few Democratic representatives who did not favor a protective rate when commodities in which their own districts were interested were under discussion. The Democratic attitude in practical demonstration is: Protect ours, but don't protect the other fellow's business.

In the framing of every tariff which has been accomplished under the inspiration and control of the Republican party the principle of protecting American labor and American industries has been embodied. And the Payne tariff, in obedience to the commands of the last Republican national platform, has its schedules adjusted with the view to protecting home interests. The last Republican platform declares the policy of the Republican party to be: "Not only to preserve without excessive duties that security against foreign competition to which American manufacturers, farmers and producers are entitled, but also to maintain the high standard of living of the wage earners of this country, who are the most direct beneficiaries of the protective system." And the new tariff, thus far in its practical results, has proved to be not only admirably adjusted for the raising of a sufficient revenue, but there has been under it industrial revival and high-range prosperity the country over.

And when the arguments that will influence voters in the approaching congressional elections are sifted down to an irreducible minimum this fact of the country's prosperity is going to show up large. Singularly enough, endeavor is being made to create dissatisfaction with the new tariff in the south and central west. The south is getting 16 cents a pound for its cotton—nearly three times the price prevailing under the last Democratic tariff—and the west is getting $1 per bushel for its wheat and 65 cents for its corn, or just about double the prices obtained under the Wilson-Gorman tariff. The Republican party in the campaign that is ahead will stand upon the policies and the record of the party and will win. It is only a question this year, as it was two years ago, of how large the Republican majority in the next house is going to be.

The Annual Free Trade Lie.

The Kansas City Star has been claiming that the tariff on broom corn was the cause of the high prices of brooms. The Republicans have held that it was a shortage of brooms. The Star recently contained an article written by one of its reporters saying that the shortage of broom corn last year raised the price to $250 per ton and brooms to 45 and 50 cents each. But a big crop of broom corn was now in sight, and the dealers of Kansas City believe that as soon as the crop is ready for the market that broom corn will drop to $50 to $100 per ton and the price of brooms back to 20 and 25 cents. Another free trade lie nailed. —Pleasanton (Kan.) Observer.

His Record Clear.

For years James S. Sherman was the chairman of the house committee on Indian affairs. His record in that office is clear. The testimony was constant of his official and personal devotion to the Indian charges of the government. Today Mr. Sherman holds the high office of vice-president of the United States. The people could not easily be led to believe that he has been interested corruptly in an attempt to block legislation intended to safeguard Indian rights.—Chicago Evening Post.

Republican Results.

The Des Moines Capital says that: "Millions of dollars will be saved to Iowa shippers by a section of the new interstate commerce law which went into effect Thursday, August 18. This section reads, 'It shall be unlawful for any common carrier subject to the provisions of this act to charge any greater compensation as a through rate than the aggregate of the intermediate rates, subject to the provisions of this act.'"

LOWER TARIFF; LOWER WAGE

"If the Tariff Be Reduced We Cannot Maintain the High Wage Rate Now in Force."

If the tariff be reduced we cannot maintain the high wage rate now in force. A lowering of the tariff would invite an influx of foreign goods produced by cheap labor, and wages in our country would have to go down with the tariff as a matter of business existence.—Mr. Frank A. Munsey, in New York Herald.

Mr. Frank A. Munsey in that sentence places American labor face to face with the real meaning of the tariff problem. His views as regards this question are based on practical experience, gained at considerable expense in the publication of a staggering number of newspapers and magazines. For some time past it has been a dull year indeed which has not seen Mr. Munsey found a magazine or purchase a daily newspaper. Already his interests of this kind embrace a goodly portion of the United States, and as his activity shows no sign of waning they may one day extend from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast and from the great lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Mr. Munsey as an employer of labor is in a position to speak authoritatively regarding wages, his opinions being based on first hand information, and he will have rendered labor in the United States an immense service if he succeeds in opening its eyes to the fact that tinkering with the tariff is in reality tinkering with wages. The question to be answered is not, as Mr. Munsey points out, whether protection is advantageous for this, that or the other country, it is this: Are American labor organizations prepared to accept the inevitable consequences of a radical downward revision of the tariff? One of these consequences, and one that directly concerns labor, must be a reduction of wages. The abandonment, wholly or partially, by the United States of the high protective tariff principle would so stimulate foreign competition with home industries that American manufacturers to meet it would be forced to lower the present rate of wages. If they did not foreign competition would sweep them out of existence, throwing labor out of employment.

As Mr. Munsey says, if the tariff is lowered, wages must be lowered. You cannot have both high wages and a lower tariff.

Cotton Weaving in Japan.

Some interesting facts relating to the development of Oriental competition in the spinning and weaving of cotton textiles are set forth in the current issue of the Textile Manufacturers' Journal. The hostile critics of the cotton schedule of the tariff of 1909 might, if their minds are open to conviction, see in the Orient a condition and a prospect that do not tend to support the contention that the tariff on cottons is too high. Official statistics show that in Japan there has been since 1900 an increase of 259,007 spindles, while the increase in pounds of yarn spun has been 94,171,381 pounds. Of the 74,225 operatives employed in the Japanese spinning industry 58,960, or nearly 80 per cent., are females. Their average daily wage is 14 cents, while the average daily wage of the male operatives is 22 cents. At this rate how long will it be, with a constant increase in shipments of English textile machinery to Japan, before the "Yellow Peril" becomes industrial rather than political? Judging from present indications, the time is near at hand when there will be nobody left in the United States to contend that the tariff on cotton fabrics is too high; that is, nobody but free traders, who would be only too well pleased to find the cotton weaving industry of the United States completely wiped out by Japanese competition.

How About the Farmers?

How about the west, with which the importations of Canadian grain, hay, butter and other natural products would come into idrect competition? If New England is entitled to protection for manufacturers, is not the west as fairly entitled to protection for farm produce? And if Canada will consent only to reciprocity which affects natural products how is the matter to be arranged in a manner to suit all American interests? Of course the difficulties may not be insurmountable, and it is possible that, coming together in an amicable spirit, the United States and Canada may yet fix upon a plan that will be mutually satisfactory and advantageous. But every time the question is candidly discussed it is found that the United States tariff is by no means as serious a malefactor as enemies allege. And when it is realized that under our protective system the country has become the greatest manufacturing nation in the world, and also one of the largest exporters of manufactures, honest students of the situation must admit that there is a good deal to say in favor of American protection.—Troy Times.

"Never Again."

Foss of Massachusetts and Havens of New York, the two free trade Democrats who broke into congress last session because of Republican quarrels in their respective districts, say "Never again," to Democratic appeals to run for re-election. They well know that they couldn't come within 40 rows of apple trees of being elected to congress this fall.

There is never any disgrace in being defeated battling for prosperity, the president and protection.—Kansas City Journal.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

MOISSANT, THE MAN-BIRD

John Moissant, the young Chicagoan who startled the world by his flight across the Dover channel with a passenger on his way from Paris to London, has been a "soldier of fortune" from his early youth. Moissant was born of Spanish parents and is an architect. He suddenly came into prominence when he unexpectedly flew from Etampes to the Issy military ground, passing over the Eiffel tower.

Moissant is thirty-five years old and is of slight build. He is seemingly very jovial in temperament. He first visited Paris some months ago and became interested in the study of aviation. He had two machines built after his own designs and found the subject so fascinating that he determined to become a practical airman.

The Moissant brothers, George, Alfred and John, and two sisters, for many years had interests valued at several hundred thousand dollars in Salvador. In 1907 George and Alfred Moissant were arrested and imprisoned on charges of aiding and abetting the revolutionists. John was actively implicated in the movement against President Figueroa, and handled a rapid-fire gun for the Nicaraguans. When the revolutionists were repulsed John Moissant fled to Nicaragua. His brothers later were released, but their property was attached by the government as a bond to prevent their escape from the country.

When Moissant was sojourning in Honduras a tramp steamer loaded with a cargo valued around $100,000 was cast ashore and abandoned. In a small dugout and in the teeth of a gale Moissant made his way alone to the vessel and took possession. In the morning, when the wind had abated the captain with some of the crew and an agent of the line rowed out to the vessel, which had withstood the fury of the waves, but which was held fast on a bar in the harbor. A shot from Moissant's revolver halted them. After some warm discussion the captain had to row back to shore to inform the American consul that Moissant had seized the ship and her cargo as salvage. During the night another storm came up and finished the work of wrecking the vessel. The American consul found Moissant lashed to the topmost rigging, only a few feet above the water.

HEADS KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

George M. Hanson, recently installed as supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, hails from Maine. Mr. Hanson suggests physical and intellectual strength. Erect, broad shouldered, strong, capable of enduring vigorous and prolonged labor, and equally capable of mental activity and strain, he combines the essential qualities of a forceful and successful chief executive.

By profession a lawyer, he has been one of the leaders of the bar of his state. He has taken part in public affairs and held public office. In the city of Calais, in which he lives, he has been twice elected mayor. He was appointed collector of customs by President Cleveland, and by Governor Cobb of Maine a member of the commission for the revision and codification of the tax laws of that state.

In the order of Knights of Pythias he has attained the highest honor which that organization can confer. He became a knight in 1883, and though a member of other organizations and secret societies, has given of his time and talent chiefly to this organization since that time. He was the second chancellor commander of his home lodge. As soon as he was eligible he became a member of the grand lodge of Maine, and its grand chancellor in 1893. In 1897 he was elected supreme representative and re-elected in 1901 and 1905. In the supreme lodge Mr. Hanson has been a forceful figure, for ten years a member of and for eight years chairman of the judiciary committee, that being the ranking committee of the supreme lodge.

In 1883 he married Miss Hattie W. Farrar of Calais, a descendant of Matthew Thornton, one of the signers of the declaration of independence, and of Henry Price, who introduced Masonry into the state of Massachusetts, and whose name is borne by a Masonic lodge in Cambridge. Mrs. Hanson is the companion and associate of Mr. Hanson in their home life.

NEW YORK'S ACTING MAYOR

Greater far than the governorship of many states, perhaps than any of them, is the mayorship of New York, which has lately been filled by a young man of only thirty—John Purroy Mitchell, who became the acting chief executive of the metropolis upon the disability of Mr. Gaynor. He is undoubtedly the youngest chief executive any great American city has ever had and it shows the great American capacity for government when so young a man can step into a seat of power so great, of honor so high and responsibilities so vast.

Within an hour after Mayor Gaynor had been struck down by an assassin's bullet it is safe to say that at least half the men in New York who give any attention to public affairs and their management had thought of John Purroy Mitchell, the young president of the board of aldermen, who, under the charter, would succeed to the first office of the city if the mayor's wound should result fatally.

Mr. Mitchell was twenty-eight years old, and had been practising law on his own account for five years, when the making of his public record began. It was in the family to study law, and young Mitchell had determined on that before he went to college. Consequently when he came to the elective courses in his junior year he turned aside from the distinctive studies of the arts and chose those which he believed would help him in his later career. He went in for political science, the science of government, political history, and that sort of thing.

Mr. Mitchell is a graduate of Columbia university and of the New York Law school and entered public life as assistant corporation counsel under William B. Ellison. He conducted searching investigations into several of the city departments and proved one of the most indefatigable workers connected with the city government and last fall was elected president of the board of aldermen.

IN THE HOUSE OF GOVERNORS

William George Jordan has been appointed secretary of the house of governors. His selection by the governors is a recognition of his services as the founder of this unique institution, which is likely to become ultimately an official feature of the government. Mr. Jordan proposed the idea several years ago. It was immediately adopted by President Roosevelt and a conference of governors was called at Washington to consider the conservation of national resources. The results of the conference were so important that the governors on their own initiative called a meeting to discuss plans for greater uniformity in state legislation. At that conference it was decided to make the house of governors a permanent institution and a resolution was passed offering a vote of thanks to Mr. Jordan for his part in the foundation and promotion of the third house. William George Jordan is a widely known editor and publicist. Some years ago he gave up editorial work to devote his time to writing. He has written largely on psychological and political topics. Mr. Jordan is the only member of the house who is not a governor.

The NEAR EXTINCTION of the NAME of NAPOLEON

THE marriage of Prince Victor Napoleon to Princess Clementine of Belgium, a "royal alliance" planned with the utmost solicitude along the most ancient lines of kingcraft marks the supreme endeavor of the Bonaparte family to preserve from extinction the race of the great conqueror of Europe, Napoleon I.

It is the latest, the most widely discussed gamble of a family against fate, and the rescuer, if there be one, will be a woman.

The chances of a male heir are fairly good—simply the chances which offer to average humanity—and it is therefore likely that the Napoleonic line will be preserved, for the time at least.

But the chances that it will go on for all time are simply nil, notwithstanding the famous example of the Guelphs, of England, where descent from the only and original King David of the Jews has been claimed by enthusiastic partisans of the theory of the right divine.

Nature, laboring incessantly toward the attainment of one common level, seems to take delight in frustrating the changeless ambition of her favored child. Man, among all creatures longing for the perpetuation of his direct breed, seems ever doomed to see it disappear, inglorious and unknown, among the herd.

The Napoleonic line is in no desperate strait; yet it is apparently prepared, after only a few commonplace generations, to pass away in the same manner as did dynasties founded by conquerors as great as the first Bonaparte. The large majority seemed to fail sooner or later, both morally and physically, until like a wornout tree the race was either totally extinct or persisted only in scions that were integrally part of another alien stock.

Royalty, proceeding on the burlesque basis that the Almighty has created its bones, muscles, flesh, blood and brain of peculiar virtue, especially adapted to the bossing of things, inevitably deduced that, unless it should mate with a similar breed of boss stock, it would degenerate into the stock divinely doomed to be bossed.

Napoleon's family, when he went where conquerors go finally, was numerous enough, as families go, to promise perpetuity. But marriage with them was limited to other and older and royal lines, most of which had an ax out for a Bonaparte whenever he came around smelling of orange blossoms.

As the French republic braced up, and more and more emphatically made it apparent that all royalty there lacks so much as an inch of ground to stand on, the opportunities for royal matches deceased with the Bonapartes, and the royal scions became fewer.

Counting Victor Napoleon, there are enumerated now only a half-score remaining, with marriage unpopular on the part of the males, for dynastic reasons sufficiently obvious. Victor, able to ally himself with the daughter of a house still reigning, is the hope of the family for an heir who, when Victor shall have died, can continue the claim to the ghastly throne so grandly seized by Napoleon I.

This summer witnessed another marriage in which a famous family seems to tread the road to swift extinction. Prince Antoine Albert Radziwill, of Poland, had his way and Dorothy Deacon is his bride. On both sides of the match there is insanity, the prince's father having been an ordinary lunatic for the past seven years, and his bride's father dying insane after he killed in a duel at Cannes a guest of his wife in Paris.

The most famous of all lines in history was that of the Caesars, with the heroic figure of Julius looming as its first conspicuous member.

The Caesar line proper ended right there with "Et tu, Brute" for its epitaph. But things being ripe for the bossing of Rome, his grandnephew, Octavius, took charge, and, after him, Tiberius, who was simply a stepson of Octavius.

A dozen Roman emperors called themselves Caesar, and the magic of the name rules down even to this day as synonym for emperor in the title of Kaiser Wilhelm. But there never was a genuine dynasty of that name, because it began in the person of Julius B. C. 44, in the same person, when Brutus, Cassius and nearly fourscore assistant surgeons performed their famous Caesarian operation on him. The line of the Caesars is, in reality, Democracy's farce of the right divine.

The Capets, who managed to keep their grip on France for several centuries, began their rulership in the regular way, with one especially husky ancestor—in their case, Robert the Strong, a Saxon to whom Charles the Bald gave the duchy of the Ile de France in 861. They went into the king business in 987, when the nobles reached the conclusion that the Carolingian blood in France was about played out, the only male survivor being Charles, duke of Lorraine, whom those red-handed, two-fisted fighters regarded as a milksop. Hugh Capet, having bossed Paris and its last Carolingian king, Louis V., appealed to them as being about the size of the man they all needed, to boss them, for he had all the nerve and brawn of Robert the Strong, his Saxon ancestor.

It was evidently a hearty, healthy breed; but three and a half centuries sufficed to bring it down to Charles the Fair—Charles IV.—the last of several Capet kings all cursed with incapacity and weakness. After half a dozen years of reigning, the fair Charles flickered out, in 1824, and that ended the Capets.

The funny part of this king making was that, whenever the divine-right principle went to smash, Democracy, in the nobles and notables, hastened to get together and give it another try with a fresh breed of royalty—always agreeing on some especially bloody-minded slaughterer as their one best bet. Philip of Valois, who had the temper of a chronic earthquake, was the choice of the French barons, and he started the Valois line, in 1328, under the title of Philip VI. It took him only nine years to plunge France into the hundred years' war with England; and it took destiny—or nature—only a couple of centuries to bring the Valois family down to Henry II. in whom it flickered out in 1589.

The fate of these dynasties in France was paralleled by innumerable minor houses, there and elsewhere. Occasionally, the case of Charlemagne and Godefroy de Bouillon has been matched, as where the famous family De la Tour Auvergne came to its complete end with the death of an illegitimate scion who, although a mere private in the ranks of France's revolutionary forces, earned the title of the "First Grenadier of France."

Again, when the Rohan family, whose dukes had been kings of Bretagne, had only Marguerite de Rohan left as its heir, her husband, Henri Chabot, was coolly created duke de Rohan, to keep the name alive.

Geoffroy de Lusignan was one of the great names in French history, and the family to which he contributed distinction faded out so uncertainly that for years its name was the sport of impudent adventurers who professed to be cadets of a house which only the well informed of the nobility were positive was totally extinct. So, too, with the dukes des Eudes, who in their day were equals of the earlier Capets; and the Guises, dating back to 1508, when Rene III., conqueror of Charles the Bold and father of Claude, first French duke of Guise, presented that lapsed duchy to his second son, and ending in 1675 with the death of Francis VII., the sickly baby, left by the last maturing scion, Louis Joseph of Guise.

The house of the Medici is generally supposed to amount to little more than the astute Catherine and Marie de Medici, so thrillingly prominent in the annals of European history. The truth is that it follows absolutely the rule of a first, high-powered progenitor and of ultimate descendants fit only for contempt.

Salvestro de Medici, a member of the greater guilds in Florence, allied himself with the lesser guilds during the revolt of the Clompi in 1378 and really managed the whole outbreak. The revolt died out, but Salvestro's cunning had made him a factor in Florence.

Cunning it was that marked all his line; but even that phase of inherited energy lapsed during the centuries until, on July 9, 1737, the last of them, Giovan-Gaston, ruler of Tuscany, passed away, he and the land he governed both wrecks from a succession of profligates and incompetents.

In England the story has been much the same as in France, an excellent example of the perishing royal line being the famous Tudors. Henry VII., on his father's side, sprang from the marriage of a plain Welsh gentleman, Owen Tudor, who had the luck to marry Catherine, the widow of Henry V.; on his mother's side, with the bar sinister marring the decency of his descent he claimed John of Gaunt as his ancestor. As earl of Richmond, Bosworth Field, fought in 1485, gave him the throne, and the Tudor name took its place among that of kings. It vanished again on March 24, 1603, when Queen Elizabeth, the last of his descendants, died unmarried at the age of seventy.

MAKING THE DUMB SPEAK

Various Methods by Which the Mutes Are Taught to Utter Many Words.

Scripture remarks that the following exercises are typical of those used in the best schools for deaf mutes: Breathing through the nose and mouth are first taught. The teacher breathes through the nose on a slate or a mirror and shows the two moist spots; the child learns to imitate this. The mouth breathing produces one spot. The low position of the tongue is necessary for proper speech. It is taught by showing the position and using the mirror, and by a breath exercise. This latter rests upon the fact that the child cannot produce a good sized spot on the slate unless he keeps his tongue down. Tongue gymnastics are next used to limber up and train the muscles which have never received the proper development. The tongue is protruded, retracted, moved to each side, turned up, etc. Tongue training preparatory to various consonant sounds is introduced. Vibration of the vocal cords is taught by feeling. The pupil puts his hand on the teacher's chest and also on his own. He thus learns to make a tone. He learns to raise and lower the voice and by careful drill is able to make a fairly good tone.

The physiological alphabet consists of a set of diagrams giving the typical position of the tongue and lips for the chief sounds of the language. Combinations of consonants and vowels are now read at sight. Through these combinations words and sentences are developed. Lip reading of words and sentences is taught by having the patient watch the teacher's lips while she distinctly enunciates some word. Thus he learns to pick up objects off a table, to point out parts of the body, to obey commands, etc. When deafness is acquired after the person has learned to speak, the teaching of lip reading should begin at once. The voice then retains its natural character and the person can go right along with his education.—New York Medical Journal.

Feathers in Style

THERE is a growing sentiment against wearing the plumage of birds, in varieties where cruelty must be practised to secure it. Women are learning to discriminate in this matter and to forego the wearing of plumage that promises to bring about the extinction of a species of beautiful wild birds or to inflict torture. A proud crest of dainty feathers torn from the back of a mother bird and the death of a nest full of fledglings by slow starvation, are not pleasant suggestions to flaunt with the group of sweeping aigrettes upon the head of beauty. For the wearer must be either uninformed, or indifferent, or unmindful of cruelty. None of the excuses will pass muster with intelligent people.

Aside from a very few sorts, the feathers we have worn recently and those we will wear, are made from the plumage of domestic or other edible birds. No cruelty is practised in securing them and thousands of people make a living by manufacturing the millinery trimmings made of them. Feather bands, sewed wings, pompons, breasts and mounted sprays—in fact, a world of airy and attractive decorations—are cleverly fashioned from the feathers of the turkey, chicken, pigeon, peacock and pheasant. These are bleached, dyed, eaten with acids, pieced and pasted until their origin is lost sight of. Other birds of bright plumage, such as the parrot, and birds like the blackbird and sparrow, of which there are myriads, are used, but they are not cruelly treated, unless sudden death is cruel.

The wearing of a bird upon the hat may be in questionable taste and at present one sees almost no birds, but any amount of plumage. Gradually the wearing of feathers may die out, but the signs of the times do not point that way. More plumage is shown now than ever before. Women should learn to discriminate in choosing it, and select those feathers which they may wear with an easy conscience. They are obliged to inform themselves in some states of the Union or run the risk of forfeiting their forbidden property. For laws have been passed and are enforced to protect certain birds, and one may not own their plumage.

Design That Would Look Well in a Gray Zephyr, Spotted With Blue.

Gray zephyr spotted with blue would look pretty carried out in our design. The skirt has a panel front, which is continued in a deep band at the foot, and has the upper part gathered; it is also gathered at the waist. A panel to match is taken down back and front, the sleeves being cut in with the sides. Lawn claudine cuffs and collar add a dainty finish.

Hat of blue straw, trimmed with gray net and roses.

Material required: Seven and one-half yards zephyr 30 inches wide.

Easy Way to Clean Lace Yokes.

If instead of taking lace yokes and cuffs out of dresses to wash when soiled they are rubbed with dry starch, then brushed thoroughly, the lace will look like new.

PLEA FOR THE GROWING GIRL

Problem of Maternal Management That Is Worth Some Serious Consideration.

So many older women seem to think that because a girl of from fourteen to twenty or so is likely to be callow and sometimes forward and rather ridiculous in her pretentions of age and dignity she must be continually snubbed and "put down." They keep calling her "child" and laughing at her opinions and criticisms, and leaving her out of discussion and conversation, until some day they awake with a start to realize that the child is a woman, and a pert and embittered woman at that.

Of course, American girls are notorious for their unpleasant presumption, and there are many, many things which a girl in her teens is not competent to decide for herself, let alone for others; but there is no reason why a girl who really is growing up should be made to feel that she is always in the way and must be patronized when she is noticed at all. Give her at least a chance to feel that she is one of the family and that she is a step above the children in the nursery, whom she is likely so to despise.

Here, as elsewhere, "you will go most safely in the middle," and this rather delicate problem of maternal management will settle itself if consideration and common sense are learned on one side and taught on the other.—Exchange.

Short Skirts or Long?

There can be no doubt that the really short skirt has thoroughly established itself this spring. Of course, for walking and all outdoor games it is a delightful and most sensible fashion, but there is some question as to its beauty and suitability where the dressy afternoon frock or evening toilet is concerned. For the quite young woman who is still in her teens, or has recently quitted them, the short frock looks girlish and pretty, and is, moreover, very practical and comfortable. But with the older woman it is quite a different matter. She looks simply ridiculous in these fashionable curtailed skirts, and, far from giving her a girlish appearance, they add years to her apparent age.

Garters for short socks for the kiddies are being made of hat rubber instead of the wider and more conspicuous garter rubber or the untidy nothing at all. Usually it is white, though for pink or blue socks it can easily be painted the color desired.

A STITCH IN TIME

Every form of cutaneous disease could be cured in its incipiency if a jar of Resinol Ointment were kept at hand. A little of this excellent Ointment applied in time will effectually ward off and cure a starting trouble which, if neglected, may prove a troublesome and often obstinate case of Eczema or other disfiguring skin disease. For burns, scalds, slight wounds, sores, eruption of poison ivy, sunburn, it is a quick and sure remedy, usually curing these troubles over night. To the unfortunate sufferer with Hemorrhoids (Itching or Inflamed Piles) resinol ointment is indeed a godsend. The intense pain and intolerable itching of this trouble is instantaneously relieved and a cure effected in a very short time.

The bath room or family medicine case is incomplete if not equipped with Resinol Soap and Ointment. They are most valuable accessories in every well regulated household, and can be obtained at any drug store.

Resinol Medicated Shaving Stick is also highly appreciated by men who regard a good complexion and a face free from pimples and blotches.

A Shipping Error.

The young duchess of Westminster, wife of the richest peer in England, recently gave birth to her third child, a daughter. Thus there is no heir to the immense Grosvenor fortune, Earl Grosvenor, the duchess' second child, having died at the age of four.

Apropos of all this, a rather cruel story is being told in Newport about Lady Ursula Grosvenor, the eight-year-old daughter of the young duchess.

A friend, the story goes, called at Eaton Hall, and as she sat in the drawing-room, little Lady Ursula entered.

"Oh, good afternoon," she said, gravely. "Mamma can't see any one today. She's upstairs with the new baby. They sent her, you know, a girl when she'd ordered a boy, and she's so upset that she's quite ill."

Try to Come Back.

Not long ago Lord Kinnaird, who is always actively interested in religious work, paid a surprise visit to a mission school in the east end of London and told a class of boys the story of Samson. Introducing his narrative, his lordship added:

"He was strong, became weak, and then regained his strength, enabling him to destroy his enemies. Now, boys, if I had an enemy, what would you advise me to do?"

A little boy, after meditating on the secret of that great giant's strength, shot up his hand and exclaimed: "Get a bottle of 'air restorer."

Slightly Confused.

All of us become confused and all of us mix our language sometimes, but the preparation of an old negro preacher's sermon was the greatest confusion of metaphors I ever heard, says a traveler. When the lengthy discourse was nearing its close and he had reached his "Twenty-third and lastly, brethren," he wound up by the following elaborate figure:

"Everywha, bredren, we see de Almighty—all down de untrodden paths of time, we see de footprints of de Almighty hand."—Human Life.

"NO FRILLS"

Just Sensible Food Cured Him.

Sometimes a good, healthy commercial traveler suffers from poorly selected food and is lucky if he learns that Grape-Nuts food will put him right.

A Cincinnati traveler says: "About a year ago my stomach got in a bad way. I had a headache most of the time and suffered misery. For several months I ran down until I lost about 70 pounds in weight and finally had to give up a good position and go home. Any food that I might use seemed to nauseate me.

"My wife, hardly knowing what to do, one day brought home a package of Grape-Nuts food and coaxed me to try it. I told her it was no use but finally to humor her I tried a little, and they just struck my taste. It was the first food I had eaten in nearly a year that did not cause any suffering.

"Well, to make a long story short, I began to improve and stuck to Grape-Nuts. I went up from 135 pounds in December to 194 pounds the following October.

"My brain is clear, blood all right and appetite too much for any man's pocketbook. In fact, I am thoroughly made over, and owe it all to Grape-Nuts. I talk so much about what Grape-Nuts will do that some of the men on the road have nicknamed me 'Grape-Nuts,' but I stand today a healthy, rosy-cheeked man—a pretty good example of what the right kind of food will do.

"You can publish this if you want to. It is a true statement without any frills."

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Innes, spinster and guardian of Gertrude and Halsey, established summer headquarters at Sunnyside. Amidst numerous difficulties the servants deserted. As Miss Innes locked up for the night, she was startled by a dark figure on the veranda. She passed a terrible night, which was filled with unseemly noises. In the morning Miss Innes found a strange link cuff button in a clothes hamper. Gertrude and Halsey arrived with Jack Bailey. The house was awakened by a revolver shot. A strange man was found shot to death, in the hall. It proved to be the body of Arnold Armstrong, whose banker father owned the country house. Miss Innes found Halsey's revolver on the lawn. He and Jack Bailey had disappeared. The link cuff button mysteriously disappeared. Detective Jamieson and the coroner arrived. Gertrude revealed that she was engaged to Jack Bailey, with whom she had talked in the billiard room a few moments before the murder. Jamieson told Miss Innes that she was hiding evidence from him. He imprisoned an intruder in an empty room. The prisoner escaped down a laundry chute. It developed that the intruder was probably a woman. Gertrude was suspected, for the intruder left a print of a bare foot. Gertrude returned home with her right ankle sprained. A negro found the other half of what proved to be Jack Bailey's cuff button. Halsey suddenly reappeared. He said he and Bailey had left because they had received a telegram. Gertrude said that she had given Bailey an unloaded revolver, fearing to give him Halsey's loaded weapon. Cashier Bailey of Paul Armstrong's bank, defunct, was arrested, charged with embezzlement. Halsey said Armstrong had wrecked his own bank, and was able to clear Bailey. A telegram contained news that Paul Armstrong was dead. Halsey trapped Mrs. Watson, the housekeeper, while she was stealing from the house. At the lodge Miss Innes and Halsey found Halsey's fiancee, Louise Armstrong, sister of the dead man. She was believed to be in California. The lodge keeper told Miss Innes that Louise and Arnold had had a long talk the night of the murder. Louise was prostrated.

"I Am Very Sorry You Have Made This Decision," He Said.

The gardener mentioned by Halsey came out about two o'clock in the afternoon, and walked up from the station. I was favorably impressed by him. His references were good—he had been employed by the Brays' until they went to Europe, and he looked young and vigorous. He asked for one assistant, and I was glad enough to get off so easily. He was a pleasant-faced young fellow, with black hair and blue eyes, and his name was Alexander Graham. I have been particular about Alex, because, as I said before, he played an important part later.

That afternoon I had a new insight into the character of the dead banker. I had my first conversation with Louise. She sent for me, and against my better judgment I went.

She held out her hand and I took it between both of mine.

"What can I say to you, Miss Innes?" she said slowly. "To have come like this—"

I thought she was going to break down, but she did not.

"You are not to think of anything but of getting well," I said, patting her hand. "When you are better, I am going to scold you for not coming here at once. This is your home, my dear, and of all people in the world, Halsey's old aunt ought to make you welcome."

She smiled a little, sadly, I thought.

"I ought not to see Halsey," she said. "Miss Innes, there are a great many things you will never understand, I am afraid. I am an imposter on your sympathy, because I—I stay here and let you lavish care on me, and all the time I know you are going to despise me."

"Nonsense!" I said briskly. "Why, what would Halsey do to me if I even ventured such a thing? He is so big and masterful that if I dared to be anything but rapturous over you, he would throw me out of a window. Indeed, he would be quite capable of it."

She seemed scarcely to hear my facetious tone. She had eloquent brown eyes—the Inneses are fair, and prone to a grayish-green optic that is better for use than appearance—and they seemed now to be clouded with trouble.

"Poor Halsey!" she said softly. "Miss Innes, I cannot marry him, and I am afraid to tell him. I am a coward—a coward!"

I sat beside the bed and stared at her. She was too ill to argue with, and, besides, sick people take queer fancies.

"We will talk about that when you are stronger," I said gently.

"But there are some things I must tell you," she insisted. "You must wonder how I came here, and why I stayed hidden at the lodge. Dear old Thomas has been almost crazy, Miss Innes. I did not know that Sunnyside was rented. I knew my mother wished to rent it, without telling my—stepfather, but the news must have reached her after I left. When I started east, I had only one idea—to be alone with my thoughts for a time, to bury myself here. Then, I—must have taken a cold on the train."

"You came east in clothing suitable for California," I said, "and like all young girls nowadays, I don't suppose you wear flannels." But she was not listening.

"Miss Innes," she said, "has my stepbrother Arnold gone away?"

"What do you mean?" I asked, startled. But Louise was literal.

"He didn't come back that night," she said, "and it was so important that I should see him."

"I believe he has gone away," I replied uncertainly. "Isn't it something that we could attend to instead?"

But she shook her head. "I must do it myself," she said dully.

Halsey came to the door at that moment and I could hear him coaxing Liddy for admission to the sick room.

"Shall I bring him in?" I asked Louise, uncertain what to do. The girl seemed to shrink back among her pillows at the sound of his voice. I was vaguely irritated with her; there are few young fellows like Halsey—straightforward, honest, and willing to sacrifice everything for the one woman. I knew one once, more than 30 years ago, who was like that; he died a long time ago. And sometimes I take out his picture, with its cane and its queer silk hat, and look at it. But of late years it has grown too painful; he is always a boy—and I am an old woman. I would not bring him back if I could.

Perhaps it was some such memory that made me call out sharply.

"Come in, Halsey." And then I took my sewing and went into the boudior beyond, to play propriety. I did not try to hear what they said, but every word came through the open door with curious distinctness. Halsey had evidently gone over to the bed and I suppose he kissed her. There was silence for a moment, as if words were superfluous things.

"I have been almost wild, sweetheart,"—Halsey's voice. "Why didn't you trust me, and send for me before?"

"It was because I couldn't trust myself," she said in a low tone. "I am too weak to struggle to-day; oh, Halsey, how I have wanted to see you!"

There was something I did not hear, then Halsey again.

"We could go away," he was saying. "What does it matter about any one in the world but just the two of us? To be always together, like this, hand in hand; Louise—don't tell me it isn't going to be. I won't believe you."

"You don't know; you don't know," Louise repeated dully. "Halsey, I care—you know that—but—not enough to marry you."

"That is not true, Louise," he said sternly. "You cannot look at me with your honest eyes and say that."

"I cannot marry you," she repeated miserably. "It's bad enough, isn't it? Don't make it worse. Some day, before long, you will be glad."

"Then it is because you have never loved me." There were depths of hurt pride in his voice. "You saw how much I loved you, and you let me think you cared—for a while. No—that isn't like you, Louise. There is something you haven't told me. Is it—because there is some one else?"

"Yes," almost inaudibly.

"Louise! Oh, I don't believe it."

"It is true," she said sadly. "Halsey, you must not try to see me again. As soon as I can, I am going away from here—where you are all so much kinder than I deserve. And whatever you hear about me, try to think as well of me as you can. I am going to marry—another man. How you must hate me—hate me!"

I could hear Halsey cross the room to the window. Then, after a pause, he went back to her again. I could hardly sit still; I wanted to go in and give her good shaking.

"Then it's all over," he was saying with a long breath. "The plans we made together, the hopes, the—all of it—over! Well, I'll not be a baby, and I'll give you up the minute you say 'I don't love you and I do love—some one else!'"

"I can not say that," she breathed, "but, very soon, I shall marry—the other man."

I could hear Halsey's low triumphant laugh.

"I defy him," he said. "Sweetheart, as long as you care for me, I am not afraid."

The wind slammed the door between the two rooms just then, and I could hear nothing more, although I moved my chair quite close. After a discreet interval, I went into the other room and found Louise alone. She was staring with sad eyes at the cherub painted on the ceiling over the bed, and because she looked tired I did not disturb her.

CHAPTER XIV.

An Egg-Nog and a Telegram.

We had discovered Louise at the lodge Tuesday night. It was Wednesday I had my interview with her. Thursday and Friday were uneventful, save as they marked improvement in our patient. Gertrude spent almost all the time with her, and the two had grown to be great friends. But certain things hung over me constantly; the coroner's inquest on the death of Arnold Armstrong, to be held Saturday, and the arrival of Mrs. Armstrong and young Dr. Walker, bringing the body of the dead president of the Traders' bank. We had not told Louise of either death.

Then, too, I was anxious about the children. With their mother's inheritance swept away in the wreck of the bank, and with their love affairs in a disastrous condition, things could scarcely be worse. Added to that, the cook and Liddy had a flare up over the proper way to make beef-tea for Louise, and, of course, the cook left.

Mrs. Watson had been glad enough, I think, to turn Louise over to our care, and Thomas went upstairs night and morning to greet his young mistress from the doorway. Poor Thomas! He had the faculty—found still in some old negroes, who cling to the traditions of slavery days—of making his employer's interest his. It was always "we" with Thomas. I miss him sorely; pipe-smoking, obsequious, not over reliable, kindly old man!

On Thursday Mr. Harton, the Armstrongs' legal adviser, called up from town. He had been advised, he said, that Mrs. Armstrong was coming east with her husband's body and would arrive Monday. He came with some hesitation, at last, to the fact that he had been further instructed to ask me to relinquish my lease on Sunnyside, as it was Mrs. Armstrong's desire to come directly there.

I was aghast.

"Here!" I said. "Surely you are mistaken, Mr. Harton. I should think, after—what happened here only a few days ago, she would never wish to come back."

"Nevertheless," he replied, "she is most anxious to come. This is what she says: 'Use every possible means to have Sunnyside vacated. Must go there at once.'"

"Mr. Harton," I said testily, "I am not going to do anything of the kind. I and mine have suffered enough at the hands of this family. I rented the house at an exorbitant figure and I have moved out here for the summer. My city home is dismantled and in the hands of decorators. I have been here one week, during which I have had not a single night of uninterrupted sleep, and I intend to stay until I have recuperated. Moreover, if Mr. Armstrong died insolvent, as I believe was the case, his widow ought to be glad to be rid of so expensive a piece of property."

The lawyer cleared his throat.

"I am very sorry you have made this decision," he said. "Miss Innes, Mrs. Fitzhugh tells me Louise Armstrong is with you."

"She is."

"Has she been informed of this—double bereavement?"

"Not yet," I said. "She has been very ill; perhaps to-night she can be told."

"It is very sad; very sad," he said. "I have a telegram for her, Miss Innes. Shall I send it out?"

"Better open it and read it to me," I suggested. "If it is important, that will save time."

There was a pause while Mr. Harton opened the telegram. Then he read it slowly, judicially.

"'Watch for Nina Carrington. Home Monday. Signed F. L. W.'"

"Hum!" I said. "'Watch for Nina Carrington. Home Monday.' Very well, Mr. Harton, I will tell her, but she is not in condition to watch for any one."

"Well, Miss Innes, if you decide to—er—relinquish the lease, let me know," the lawyer said.

"I shall not relinquish it," I replied, and I imagined his irritation from the way he hung up the receiver.

I wrote the telegram down word for word, afraid to trust my memory, and decided to ask Dr. Stewart how soon Louise might be told the truth. The closing of the Traders' bank I considered unnecessary for her to know, but the death of her stepfather and stepbrother must be broken to her soon, or she might hear it in some unexpected and shocking manner.

Dr. Stewart came about four o'clock, bringing his leather satchel into the house with a great deal of care, and opening it at the foot of the stairs to show me a dozen big yellow eggs nesting among the bottles.

"Real eggs," he said proudly. "None of your anemic store eggs, but the real thing—some of them still warm. Feel them! Egg-nog for Miss Louise!"

He was beaming with satisfaction, and before he left, he insisted on going back to the pantry and making an egg-nog with his own hands. Somehow, all the time he was doing it, I had a vision of Dr. Willoughby, my nerve specialist in the city, trying to make an egg-nog. I wondered if he ever prescribed anything so plebeian—and so delicious. And while Dr. Stewart whisked the eggs he talked.

"I said to Mrs. Stewart," he confided, a little red in the face from the exertion, "after I went home the other day, that you would think me an old gossip, for saying what I did about Walker and Miss Louise."

"Nothing of the sort," I protested.

"The fact is," he went on, evidently justifying himself, "I got that piece of information just as we get a lot of things, through the kitchen end of the house. Young Walker's chauffeur—Walker's more fashionable than I am, and he goes around the country in a Stanhope car—well, his chauffeur comes to see our servant girl, and he told her the whole thing. I thought it was probable, because Walker spent a lot of time up here last summer, when the family was here, and besides, Riggs, that's Walker's man, had a very pat little story about the doctor's building a house on this property, just at the foot of the hill. The sugar, please."

The egg-nog was finished. Drop by drop the liquor had cooked the egg, and now, with a final whisk, a last toss in the shaker, it was ready, a symphony in gold and white. The doctor sniffed it.

"Real eggs, real milk, and a touch of real Kentucky whisky," he said.

He insisted on carrying it up himself, but at the foot of the stairs he paused.

"Riggs said the plans were drawn for the house," he said, harking back to the old subject. "Drawn by Huston in town So I naturally believed him."

When the doctor came down, I was ready with a question.

"Doctor," I asked, "is there any one in the neighborhood named Carrington? Nina Carrington?"

"Carrington?" He wrinkled his forehead. "Carrington? No, I don't remember any such family. There used to be Covingtons down the creek."

"The name was Carrington," I said and the subject lapsed.

A MARVELOUS RECOVERY.

How a Chronic Invalid Regained Perfect Health.

Mrs. Ray Trusner, 30 West Third St., New Albany, Ind., says: "Kidney disease had rendered me a chronic invalid. I lay in bed unable to move hand or foot. My right limb was swollen to twice normal size. I looked the picture of death and my case puzzled the doctors. The kidney secretions were highly colored and scalded terribly. Marked improvement followed the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. In six weeks I was a well woman. My friends and relatives marvel at my recovery."

HOW A DOCTOR CURED SCALP DISEASE

"When I was ten or twelve years old I had a scalp disease, something like scald head, though it wasn't that. I suffered for several months, and most of my hair came out. Finally they had a doctor to see me and he recommended the Cuticura Remedies. They cured me in a few weeks. I have used the Cuticura Remedies, also, for a breaking out on my hands and was benefited a great deal. I haven't had any more trouble with the scalp disease. Miss Jessie F. Buchanan, R. F. When the Fish Exploded.

Somebody discovered that fish are fond of gasoline, and this led to the idea of soaking worms in gasoline in order to make them more alluring when used for bait.

Mark the result.

Two of those gasoline-tempted fish exploded in the frying pan, and broke the kitchen window, and blew the cook's face full of mashed potato, and hurled the teakettle into the flour barrel, and painted the kitchen ceiling with stewed tomatoes.

Call it a lying world and let it go at that.

How It Was Named.

Nottingham lace was so called because it originally was made by the semi-savage people who lived in the caves in the district now known as Nottingham, in England. By keeping the work between them and the dark mouth of the cave the women could work the pattern easily. Nottingham, or any other lace, even the finest and filmiest, can be washed safely and quickly with Easy Task soap, which is a natural, scientific cleanser and leaves the lace in the best condition. Easy Task costs but five cents a cake at your grocer's.

Something Dreadful.

Wee Anita was listening to a story of the Johnstown flood.

"What made it?" she asked.

"Oh, the dam broke," replied grandma.

The next morning she ran into her brother's room and, climbing up on the bed, inquired anxiously: "Buvver, wasn't it just dreffal 'bout that swear breaking and killing all dose people?"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Need Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brookfield, Mo.—"Two years ago I was unable to do any kind of work and only weighed 118 pounds. My trouble dates back to the time that women may expect nature to bring on them the Change of Life. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me feel much better, and I have continued its use. I am very grateful to you for the good health I am now enjoying."—Mrs. Sarah Lousignont, 414 S. Livingston Street, Brookfield, Mo.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

"Do you like Hamlet?" asked the hostess of her unlettered, if gushing, guest.

"Indeed I do," ws the reply. "I am excessively fond of it, but I always prefer a savory to a sweet one."

There was a momentary confusion, and then the hostess realized that the admiration of the guest was of a culinary, not literary, character.

"I gave her ham with an omelette for breakfast next morning," said the hostess, when telling the story.—Scraps.

Even the Children.

Ex-Governor Pennypacker, condemning in his witty way the American divorce evil, told, at a Philadelphia luncheon, an appropriate story.

"Even our children," he said, "are becoming infected. A Kensington school teacher, examining a little girl in grammar, said:

"'What is the future of "I love?"'

"'A divorce,' the child answered promptly."

INDEPENDENCE ON THE FARM

SPLENDID RESULTS FOLLOW FARMING IN THE CANADIAN WEST.

Americans In Canada Not Asked to Forget That They Were Born Americans.

Farm produce today is remunerative, and this helps to make farm life agreeable. Those who are studying the economics of the day tell us that the strength of the nation lies in the cultivation of the soil. Farming is no longer a hand-to-mouth existence. It means independence, often affluence, but certainly independence.

Calling at a farm house, near one of the numerous thriving towns of Alberta, in Western Canada, the writer was given a definition of "independence" that was accepted as quite original. The broad acres of the farmer's land had a crop—and a splendid one, too, by the way—ripening for the reapers' work. The evenness of the crop, covering field after field, attracted attention, as did also the neatness of the surroundings, the well-built substantial story-and-a-half log house, and the well-rounded sides of the cattle. His broken English—he was a French Canadian—was easily understandable and pleasant to listen to. He had come there from Montreal a year ago, had paid $20 an acre for the 320-acre farm, with the little improvement it had. He had never farmed before, yet his crop was excellent, giving evidence as to the quality of the soil, and the good judgment that had been used in its preparation. And brains count in farming as well as "braw." Asked how he liked it there, he straightened his broad shoulders, and with hand outstretched towards the waving fields of grain, this young French Canadian, model of symmetrical build, replied: "Be gosh, yes, we like him—the farmin'—well, don't we, Jeannette?" as he smilingly turned to the young wife standing near. She had accompanied him from Montreal to his far-west home, to assist him by her wifely help and companionship, in making a new home in this new land. "Yes, we come here wan year ago, and we never farm before. Near Montreal, me father, he kep de gris' mill, an' de cardin' mill, an' be gosh! he run de cheese factor' too. He work, an' me work, an' us work tarn har', be gosh! Us work for de farmer; well 'den, sometin' go not always w'at you call de' right, an' de farmer he say de' mean t'ing, be gosh! and tell us go to —well, anyway he tarn mad. Now," and then he waved his hand again' towards the fields, "I 'ave no bodder, no cardin' mill, no gris' mill, no cheese factor'. I am now de farmer man an' when me want to, me can say to de oder fellow! you go——! Well, we like him—the farmin'." And that was a good definition of independence.

RANG THE BELL, ALL RIGHT

Throughout a trip of several hundred miles in the agricultural district of Western Canada, the writer found the farmers in excellent spirits, an optimistic feeling being prevalent everywhere. It will be interesting to the thousands on the American side of the line to know that their relatives and friends are doing well there, that they have made their home in a country that stands up so splendidly under what has been trying conditions in most of the northwestern part of the farming districts of the continent. With the exception of some portions of Southern Alberta, and also a portion of Manitoba and Southern Saskatchewan the grain crops could be described as fair, good and excellent. The same drought that affected North and South Dakota, Montana, Minnesota, Wisconsin and other of the northern central states extended over into a portion of Canada just mentioned. But in these portions the crops for the past four or five years were splendid and the yields good.

The great province of Saskatchewan has suffered less from drought in proportion to her area under cultivation than either of the other provinces. On the other hand, instead of the drought being confined very largely to the south of the main line of the C. P. R. it is to be found in patches right through the center of northern Saskatchewan also. In spite of this, however, Saskatchewan has a splendid crop. A careful checking of the averages of yield, with the acreages in the different districts, gives an average yield of 15½ bushels to the acre.

In Southern Alberta one-fifth of the winter wheat will not be cut, or has been re-sown to feed. There are individual crops which will run as high as 45 bushels on acres of 500 and 1,000 acres, but there are others which will drop as low as 15. A safe average for winter wheat will be 19 bushels. The sample is exceptionally fine, excepting in a few cases where it has been wrinkled by extreme heat.

The northern section of Alberta has been naturally anxious to impress the world with the fact that it has not suffered from drought, and this is quite true. Wheat crops run from 20 to 30 bushels to an acre, but in a report such as this it is really only possible to deal with the province as a whole and while the estimate may seem very low to the people of Alberta, it is fair to the province throughout.

When the very light rainfall and other eccentricities of the past season are taken into account, it seems nothing short of a miracle that the Canadian West should have produced 102 million bushels of wheat, which is less than 18 million bushels short of the crop of 1909. It is for the West generally a paying crop and perhaps the best advertisement the country has ever had, as it shows that no matter how dry the year, with thorough tillage, good seed and proper methods of conserving the moisture, a crop can always be produced.

As some evidence of the feeling of the farmers, are submitted letters written by farmers but a few days ago, and they offer the best proof that can be given.

Maidstone, Sask., Aug. 4, '10.

I came to Maidstone from Menominee, Wis., four years ago, with my parents and two brothers. We all located homesteads at that time and now have our patents. The soil is a rich black loam as good as I have ever seen. We have had good crops each year and in 1909 they were exceedingly good. Wheat yielding from 22 to 40 bushels per acre and oats from 40 to 80. We are well pleased with the country and do not care to return to our native state. I certainly believe that Saskatchewan is just the place for a hustler to get a start and make himself a home. Wages here for farm labor range from $35 to $45 per month. Lee Dow.

Tofield, Alberta, July 10, 1910.

I am a native of Texas, the largest and one of the very best states of the Union. I have been here three years and have not one desire to return to the States to live. There is no place I know of that offers such splendid inducements for capital, brain and brawn. I would like to say to all who are not satisfied where you are, make a trip to Western Canada; if you do not like it you will feel well repaid for your trip. Take this from one who's on the ground. We enjoy splendid government, laws, school, railway facilities, health, and last, but not least, an ideal climate, and this from a Texan. O. L. Pughs.

James Normur of Porter, Wisconsin, after visiting Dauphin, Manitoba, says: "I have been in Wisconsin 25 years, coming out from Norway. Never have I seen better land and the crops in East Dauphin are better than I have ever seen, especially the oats. There is more straw and it has heavier heads than ours in Wisconsin.

"This is just the kind of land we are looking for. We are all used to mixed farming and the land we have seen is finely adapted to that sort of work. Cattle, hogs, horses and grain will be my products, and for the live stock, prospects could not be better. I have never seen such cattle as are raised here on the wild prairie grasses and the vetch that stands three or four feet high in the groves and on the open prairie.

Sir Wilfred Laurier Talks to Americans.

Sir Wilfred Laurier, Premier of Canada, is now making a tour of Western Canada and in the course of his tour he has visited many of the districts in which Americans have settled. He expresses himself as highly pleased with them. At Craig, Saskatchewan, the American settlers joined with the others in an address of welcome. In replying Sir Wilfred said in part:

"I understand that many of you have come from the great Republic to the south of us—a land which is akin to us by blood and tradition. I hope that in coming from a free country you realize that you come also to another free country, and that although you came from a republic you have come to what is a crowned democracy. The King, our sovereign, has perhaps not so many powers as the President of the United States, but whether we are on the one side of the line or the other, we are all brothers by blood, by kinship, by ties of relationship. In coming here as you have come and becoming naturalized citizens of this country no one desires you to forget the land of your ancestors. It would be a poor man who would not always have in his heart a fond affection for the land which he came from. The two greatest countries today are certainly the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the Republic of the United States. Let them be united together and the peace of the world will be forever assured.

"I hope that in coming here as you have, you have found liberty, justice and equality of rights. In this country, as in your own, you know nothing of separation of creed and race, for you are all Canadians here. And if I may express a wish it is that you would become as good Canadians as you have been good Americans and that you may yet remain good Americans. We do not want you to forget what you have been; but we want you to look more to the future than to the past. Let me, before we part, tender you the sincere expression of my warmest gratitude for your reception."

SUCCESS IN DEVELOPING PROFITABLE SHEEP FLOCK

Farmers Must First Get Away From Belief That Animals May Be Kept as Scavengers—Start With Well-Bred Ewes.

If we make a success of keeping a flock of sheep on our farms we must get away from the common belief that sheep may be kept as scavengers. While it is a fact that sheep will clean up weeds and briars, and manage to exist on poor pasture, yet this is only incidental.

If we keep a flock of sheep as scavengers they soon assume the appearance that their purpose would signify. Their fleeces appear seedy and full of burrs and briars, and they show the effects of mismanagement and neglect.

A Pen of Southdowns.

It is best to start with a few well-bred ewes and the best ram that can be found at a reasonable price, and gradually build up a herd of fine ewes.

In this way the new breeder can make a closer study of the individuality of his sheep than he could if he was working with a larger number. A more intelligent selection could be made of the rams that were brought to mate with his ewes, and he could be all of the time increasing his knowledge of the business as the size of the flock increased, until he would be capable of wrestling with many of the more intricate problems that would come when the flock was nearing perfection. A great many fail with sheep because they undertake to work with too large a number.

Every sheep looks alike and they cannot make an intelligent study of the individuals that they are selecting and mating.

It takes considerable time for a man to train his eye and touch so that he can make intelligent selections even from his own flock.

When we observe the quality and study the conditions which surround the average farm flock we do not wonder that the majority of farmers make a failure of the sheep business.

It is really astonishing to note the waste of opportunities in the sheep business. Any intelligent farmer who is a student of the present economic conditions cannot fail to see that the future of the mutton growing and fattening business affords an attractive outlook for the farmer who is in a position to handle a farm flock of from one to two hundred well-bred ewes.

Relic of Barbarism.

A Texas paper views it this way: "Mud roads are a relic of barbarism and always indicate a people of slow and unprogressive habits. If a stranger should ride over all the roads of any county and find them all macadamized, he would be ready to bet on the superior intelligence and enlightenment of the people, whether he met a single one or not. The roads of this county can be greatly improved by the road drag and now is the time to do it."

IMPROVING THE POULTRY FLOCKS

Better Results Could Be Had if Farmers in Given Locality Would All Keep One Breed of Chickens.

The community idea might be worked a great deal more than it is in the pure-bred poultry business. Better results could be had if the farmers in a given locality would all keep one breed of poultry. If they would unite on some good, popular, easy selling breed, they would find buyers much more easily than where each man keeps a different kind of stock, says the American Cultivator.

With dairy cattle this plan has worked wonderfully well for certain groups of farmers in various parts of the country. In Wisconsin there is a dairy center, where almost everybody keeps Guernseys. In New York state there is a region where dozens of farmers keep Holsteins. In northern New Jersey there is another Guernsey center, and in various parts of the countr ythere are Jersey and Ayrshire dairy centers. In all these localities there are hundreds of pure-bred animals, which can be seen in a few hours. Such a condition becomes known all over the country, and buyers travel hundreds of miles, knowing that if they do not find just what they want at the first farm they visit they are likely to find it further on in the same neighborhood.

In southern Rhode Island breeders in an accidental way kept a native class of fowls which later were known as Rhode Island Reds. When this breed began to attract notice the region was visited by scores of buyers, who picked up every decent colored bird at fancy prices, putting thousands of dollars into the hands of the farmers that they could never have had expected for the demand at more than market prices.

If fifty farmers in a neighborhood would unite on almost any poultry breed there would be no difficulty in finding a market. A great many breeders with a reputation and a host of regular customers would be glad to know of a locality where they could buy what extra stock they need to fill their orders. The farmers could easily sell the stock themselves through one of their number or through one of the New York or Boston concerns which make a specialty of pure-bred stock in large quantities. It is not a very difficult matter for the farmer to learn to sell his stock on his own account. Fancy birds will almost sell themselves.

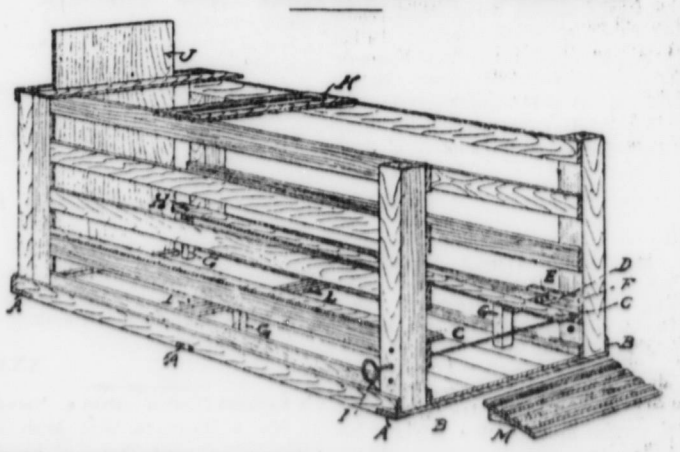
Progress and Improvement.

It is a well-known fact that in all dairy regions where dairying has been carried on for a number of years the farms are all in a high state of fertility and the farmers prosperous, with means for progress and improvements.

Best Ensilage.

Various kinds of roughage, such as clover, green oats, peas, etc., have been used for ensilage, but corn fodder makes the best. That is the almost universal verdict.

PLAN OF BREEDING CRATE



Only on a few farms are breeding-crates found. Where boars of different ages and sizes are used to mate with sows of different ages and sizes, a breeding-crate becomes necessary. In many cases farmers sell boars that have given excellent service and the best of pigs, simply because they were too large. This is a great mistake, and should be overcome by making breeding-crates. Nearly anyone can make a breeding-crate that is satisfactory, if he sets out to do so. A plan is here given which may be adopted or used as a guide to model after in making a crate of one's own design.

Money in Sows.

Fifty dollars invested in two good sows will earn five times as much as the money would in interest on a mortgage.

Showfurr—Oh, haven't you got enough? Well, start up and I'll bump and knock you again.

Active Possession.

Guinevere, aged four, was going out to walk with a young lady, of whom she was very fond. As they opened the street door they were met by a swirling cloud of dust, blown up from the thoroughfare.

"Keep your lips tightly closed, Gwen, or you'll get your lungs full of microbes," warned the young lady.

Guinevere pondered a moment and then, looking up, demanded:

"What are your crobes?"—National Monthly.

A Woman's Backbone.

History records many instances where a woman has shown that she possessed clear grit—commonly called backbone. She must have, to be able to half kill herself over a washtub every week. Women are learning now, however, that if they use Easy Task soap in the laundry it means half the work done while they rest, their clothes are cleaner and sweeter, their hands are not red and ugly, their flannels do not shrink and their linens do not rot.

Scandal.

Mrs. Simmonds glanced at the scare headline: "Bank Robbed! Police at Sea!" and laid down the sheet.

"Naow, look at that, Ez!" she ejaculated, repeating the headline aloud. "Here's a big city bank broke into by burglars, and th' city police force all off fishin' somewhere! What a scandal!"—Judge.

WESTERN CANADA'S 1910 CROPS

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Wheat Yield in Many Districts Will Be From 25 to 35 Bushels Per Acre

Land sales and homestead entries increasing. No cessation in numbers going from United States. Wonderful opportunities remain for those who intend making Canada their home. New districts being opened up for settlement. Many farmers will net, this year, $10 to $15 per acre from their wheat crop. All the advantages of old settled countries are there. Good schools, churches, splendid markets, excellent railway facilities. See the grain exhibit at the different State and some of the County fairs.

Letters similar to the following are received every day, testifying to satisfactory conditions; other districts are as favorably spoken of:

THEY SENT FOR THEIR SON.
Maidstone, Sask., Canada, Aug. 5th, 1910.
"My parents came here from Cedar Falls, Iowa, four years ago, and were so well pleased with this country they sent to Cour d'Alene for me. I have taken up a homestead near them, and am perfectly satisfied to stop here." Leonard Douglas.

WANTS SETTLER'S RATE FOR HIS STOCK.
Stettler, Alberta, July 31st, 1910.
"Well I got up here from Forest City, Iowa, last Spring in good shape with the stock and everything. Now, I have got two boys back in Iowa yet and I am going back there now soon to get them and another car up here this fall. What I would like to know is, if there is any chance to get a cheap rate back again and when we return to Canada I will call at your office for our certificates."
Yours truly, H. A. Wik.

WILL MAKE HIS HOME IN CANADA.
Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 1st, 1910.
"I am going to Canada a week from Saturday and intend to make my home there. My husband has been there six weeks and is well pleased with the country, so he wants me to come as soon as possible. He filed on a claim near Landis, Sask., and by his description of it it must be a pretty place.

My brother-in-law, Mr. Frank J. Zimmer, lives there and it was through him that we decided to locate in Canada."
Yours truly,
Mrs. Richard Henry Ebinger.

TAKES HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW'S WORD FOR IT.
Taylors Falls, Minn., Aug. 7, 1910.
"I shall go to Camrose this Fall with my cattle and household goods. I got a poor crop here this year and my brother-in-law, Axel Nordstrom in Camrose, wants me to come there. He formerly lived in Wilton, North Dakota. I am going to buy or take homestead when I get there, but I do not want to travel two times there, for I take my brother-in-law's word about the country, and want to get your low rate."
Yours truly,
Peter A. Nelson.

WANTS TO RETURN TO CANADA.
Vesta, Minn., July 24th, 1910.
"I went to Canada nine years ago and took up a quarter section of railroad land and a homestead, but my boys have never taken up any land yet. I still hold the railroad land. I had to come back to the states on account of my health. Please let me know at once if I can get the cheap rates to Penoka, Alberta.
Yours truly,
Geo. Parkowitz,
Vesta, Minn.

Dear Madam: If you are of SLENDER FIGURE and want REAL CORSET COMFORT

Let us Show You the Latest Corset Invention

Nemo "Lastikops" No. 330 at $3.00

Look at the illustration—see those two transverse bands of that wonderful new semi-elastic fabric, Lastikops Webbing.

These bands give you firm but gentle support, stop that "bearing down" sensation (you know what that means), and give you sylph-like slenderness and the greatest comfort you have ever enjoyed.

DOES THAT INTEREST YOU?

You'll have to see this corset, try it, and WEAR it before you will fully understand what a godsend it is to slender women. Sizes 18 to 26—$3.00.

A Corset All Doctors Can Recommend

Nemo No. 522, with "Lastikops Bandlet"

Corset-making has reached its highest development in the new Nemo No. 552. The "Lastikops Bandlet" prevents all the evils of tight lacing, and allows its wearers to be slender beyond their fondest hopes—safely and comfortably.

Any woman who wears a separate abdominal belt can throw it away if she wears a Nemo No. 522. The "Bandlet," which is a PART OF THE CORSET, does better work than the best separate belt that can be bought for $5.00 to $25.00. It adjusts itself, CAN'T SLIP, and simply won't allow the front steels to stick out below, even when you're seated.

Nemo Corset No. 522—$5.00

The reducing power of this corset is really amazing. Every stout woman needs it, and it's just as good for women of slight figure who want to be ultra-fashionably slender and still well and comfortable. Sizes 19 to 36—$5.00.

The Sting of a Bee.

An eastern fable tells of a potentate who demanded that there should be brought to him the stings of a thousand bees killed because one of their colony had dared commit lese majesty by stinging the hand of royalty. When they were brought in a tiny golden thimble the king was so amazed to find that a thousand of the hypodermic points made such a little mass that he issued a manifesto to the effect that thereafter no person within the bounds of the kingdom should complain at the sting of a bee. The lesson of the fable is that petty annoyances hurt because they are exaggerated in the mind: that when they are seen in their actual proportions they are so slight as to merit only contempt. How much comfort would come to the majority of persons if they could but see the tiny size of the bee stings that lead them to acts of petulance, words of anger, expressions of reproach. The bee sting annoyances have caused lifelong breaches of friendship. They have broken up families and caused anger and resentment to take the place of love and fealty.—Baltimore American.

The Mississippi of Streets.

A street is like a river, with its human current carrying all manner of drift between its banks of residences or shops on either side. And if this simile be appropriate then New York's Broadway is the Mississippi of streets. Probably no other avenue in the world presents so many contrasts in the flotsam and jetsam it carries from Harlem to the Battery. Every type of humanity—uprooted saplings from farms and orchards, proud hulled craft in silks and satins—may be described in the surging mass. Banker and bootblack, the swaggering swell and the draggled derelict, walk shoulder to shoulder—rush, rather, for Broadway is a maelstrom, the embodiment of New York's bustle and hurry, the place where nothing can stand still. Richard Harding Davis once said that everybody "seems to be trying to reach the bank to have a check cashed before 3 o'clock." — George Seibel in Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Queer Collateral.

"Here is a fact as strange as it is true," said an Egyptologist. "Mummies in ancient Egypt were used chiefly as collateral.

"When an Egyptian wanted to borrow he gave his father's or grandfather's mummy as security. Sometimes, if he required a large sum, he gave his father and both grandfathers, and he would even throw in the mummy of his mother-in-law if she fortunately happened to be in a mummified state.

"Joking aside," the Egyptologist continued, "what I tell you is the truth. An Egyptian was not permitted to borrow without pledging the mummy of some near relative. It was deemed in Egypt both impious and infamous not to redeem so sacred a pledge as that, and he who died with a family mummy still in pawn was himself buried in unconsecrated ground."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Postage Stamp.

Consider the postage stamp. It says nothing regarding the difficulty of the task assigned to it, but by dint of close application it usually gets there; also it delivers the goods.

Again, if one isn't enough to carry the thing through, two or more by working harmoniously together see the thing to a finish.

No matter if the (mail) matter be weighty, it puts a good face (of Washington) on it and goes directly to the point. It gets licked and stamped upon, and men besmirch its fair features and ofttimes give it more to carry than the (postal) union allows. But, in spite of all this, it sticks unflinchingly to the matter in hand by virtue of the fact that it knows that it has good backing.

Its stick-to-it-ivity is worthy of emulation by you.—Judge's Library.

Water Colors.

Water color painting was gradually raised from the hard, dry style of the eighteenth century to its present brilliancy by the efforts of Nicholson, Copley, Sanley and others. The Water Color society's exhibitions began in 1805 and may be said to mark the real beginning of modern water color painting. The great master, if not creator, of the art was the celebrated Turner, of whom we read so much in the works of John Ruskin.—Exchange.

How Old They Were.

"I see you employ a number of old men."

"I do."

"How old are they?"

"Too old to be interested in canoeing or mandolins or race horses or girls or tennis. That makes them fine for work."—Washington Herald.

Rather.

The subjoined item appeared in a French newspaper:

"There was found in the river this morning the body of a soldier cut to pieces and sewed up in a sack. The circumstances seem to preclude any suspicion of suicide."

Customs and Habits.

Our customs and habits are like the ruts in roads. The wheels of life settle into them, and we jog along through the mire because it is too much trouble to get out of them.

Why She Didn't.

A Reliable Medicin—eNot a Nar-cotic

Mrs. F. Marti, St. Joe, Mich., says Foley's Honey and Tar saved her little boy's life. She writes: "Our little boy contracted a severe bronchial trouble and as the doctor's medicine did not cure him, I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar in which I have great faith. It cured the cough as well as the choking and gagging spells, and he got well in a short time. Foley's Honey and Tar has many times saved us much trouble and we are never without it in the house." For sale by Emporium Drug Co.

It Saved His Leg.

"All thought I'd lose my leg, "writes J. A. Swensen, of Watertown, Wis. "Ten years of eczema, that 15 doctors could not cure, had at last laid me up. "Can be depended upon" is an expression we all like to hear, and when it is used in connection with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy it means that it never fails to cure diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. Always Answered.

Children often are highly logical, though not quite in the adult manner. They attain conclusions by those processes of "pure reason" which, being quite unbiased by the opinions of others, sometimes result in startling truths.

Almost everybody, for instance, has heard of the little lad who, listening to the questions of an irreligious friend of the family as to what would happen supposing that one good Christian should pray for an east and another for a west wind at sea, innocently answered that of course there'd be an awful tempest, but not every one has heard of the equally pertinent and naive solution recently offered by a thoughtful youngster for the ever perplexing problem of "Are prayers answered?"

The child was talking with another, who asked the vexed and puzzling question, explaining at the same time that he didn't believe that prayers were answered, because he never got anything he asked for.

"You don't pray for the right things," answered little Mr. Wiseman. "Of course all prayers are answered, but sometimes the answer is 'Yes' and sometimes it's 'No.'"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Leaving a Man Helpless.

"That statement made me think," said a veteran newspaper man to the Cincinnati Times-Star, "of the celebrated row between President Cleveland's colored man and Secretary Hoke Smith's colored man. The two were exercising their masters' horses out on a country road and got into a dispute as to what is the best thing in the world. Finally they made a bet of a dollar on it.

"'Well, what is de bes' thing in the world?' asked Cleveland's man.

"'Roas' possum and sweet taters,' said Hoke Smith's moke.

"'Whoa!' says Cleveland's man, dragging at the bridle. He jumped to the ground, seized Hoke Smith's man by the leg and dragged him to the dust.

"'Take that,' says he, lamming him on the neck, 'you miserable black rascal! You ain't leave me nuffin' to guess at!'"

Brain of the Bee.

In a German scientific periodical C. Jonescu gives the results of his studies of the brain of the bee. As might be expected from its wonderful instincts, this is found to be very complex. The various divisions of the brain are described in detail, but perhaps the most interesting part is the comparison of the brains of queens, workers and drones. The worker has a larger brain than the queen, and as the difference between queen and worker is the result of diet during the grub stage it appears that the food which develops size of body and fertility is not best for the growth of brain. The "royal jelly" as a mental stimulus is a failure. In the drone the brain is not larger than in the worker, but the optic lobes are large, corresponding to the large eyes.

Didn't Wait the Attack.

At Boulogne during a royal reception some years ago a number of English ladies in their anxiety to see everything pressed with such force against the soldiers who were keeping the line that the soldiers were forced to give way and generally were, as policemen say, "hindered in the execution of their duty." The officer in command, observing the state of affairs, called out: "One roll of the drum! If they don't stand back kiss them all!" After the first sound of the drum the ladies took to flight.

"If they had been French," said a Parisian journal, "they would have remained to a woman."

A Tale of Heroism.

"I went for a bath yesterday," said an Auvergnat. "I had been in the water some time when I suddenly perceived an enormous shark advancing toward me with its jaws open. What was I to do? When he was a yard off I dived, took out my pocketknife and ripped up the monster."

"What! Then you are in the habit of bathing with your clothes on," said one of the listeners.—From the French.

Perplexing.

Territorial (his first experience as sentry, going over his instructions)—If any one comes along I say: "Halt! Who goes there?" Then he says, "Friend," and I say, "Pass, friend; all's well." But some silly ass'll say, "Enemy," and then I shan't know what to do. Rotten job, I call it.—Punch.

Indignant.

The mayor of a small town had come to Leipzig to see the fair. A stranger who had lost his way asked him, "Pray, good honest man, what is the name of this street?"

"I am not a good honest man," said the former; "I am the mayor of Marburg."

Distinction, if No Difference.

"Why do you want to marry my daughter?"

"I'm no object of charity; I wouldn't accept your money in any other way."—New York Press.

Superfluous.

Rollingstone Nonsoss—Wot does "superfluous" mean? Tatterdon Toru—A bath robe an' a cake of soap.—Philadelphia Record.

Queer, but the man who doesn't need credit is the one who can most easily get it.—Portland Express.

The Professional View.

An English physician of whom many stories are in circulation may not be as unsympathetic as a recent anecdote seems to make him. He is a specialist on all sorts of mental disturbances and the fits, spasms and convulsions which sometimes accompany them. One of his patients, a most excitable person, if suddenly alarmed or distressed, would fall into a curious comatose state from which she could not be roused until the effect of the shock had passed. The physician had been summoned again and again, but it always happened that he was away from home at the time, and before he arrived on the scene of action the patient had recovered. At last one night he was summoned and arrived at the house while the woman was still unconscious. He hurried upstairs and into the room where she was lying on the couch. He looked at her, and an expression of interest overspread his face.

"Now, this," he said in his most cheerful tone—"this is something like!"

Whistler's Ways.

It was Whistler's custom when drowsy to go deliberately to sleep, no matter where or what the circumstances might be. At one dinner party his gentle snore suddenly aroused his neighbor, who nudged him violently with his elbow. "I say, Whistler," he protested excitedly, "you must not sleep here!"

"Leave me alone!" snapped Whistler. "I've said all I wanted to. I've no interest at all in what you and your friends have to say."

One evening he was my guest at dinner at a hotel. Edwin A. Abbey was also there. Right after dinner Whistler went calmly to sleep. On the way to the theater he enjoyed another nap in the cab, and he slumbered peacefully through the greater part of the play. The next morning he blandly asked me: "What did Abbey have to say last night? Anything worth while?"—Century.

"Charms" In Cornwall.

Cornwall, England, is a county of "charms." "The passing of children through holes in the earth, rocks or trees, once an established rite, is still practiced in various parts of Cornwall," wrote Thomas Q. Couch about fifty years ago. "With us boils are cured by creeping on the hands and knees beneath a bramble which has grown into the soil at both ends. Children afflicted with hernia are still passed through a slit in an ash sapling before sunrise, fasting, after which the slit portions are bound up, and as they unite so the malady is cured. The ash is indeed a tree of many virtues. Venomous reptiles are never known to rest under its shadow, and a single blow from an ash stick is instant death to an adder. Struck by a bough of any other tree, the reptile is said to retain marks of life until the sun goes down."

Halley's Comet.

A French scientist declares that Halley's comet was known to the authors of the Talmud long before Halley came into existence. This French scientist quotes from the Talmud: "Two wise men of Palestine, Gambiel and Joshua, made a voyage on the sea. The first had brought with him bread to eat. The second one in addition had brought flour. When Gambiel had eaten all his bread he asked him for flour, saying to him, 'How didst thou know we should be so long on our journey that thou didst bring flour?' To which Joshua did answer: 'There is a very bright star which appeareth every seventy years and which deceiveth mariners. I have thought that perchance it might surprise us during our voyage, lead us astray and thus prolong our voyage on the sea; hence it is that I have provided myself with flour.'"

The Falkland Islands.

The Falkland islands are among the least known and most out of the way corners of the widely scattered British empire. They form a sort of British suburb of the south pole, some 500 miles from the antarctic end of America, Cape Horn. A former governor of the Falkland islands, the late Sir William Robinson, used to say that he would have committed suicide while there if he could have found a tree tall enough to hang himself on.—London Standard.

How Like a Man!

Mrs. Nocknoodle—Oh, Norris, if you would always be as good and gentle and kind as you are at this moment how happy we might be! Mr. Nocknoodle (losing his temper instantly and bellowing at the top of his voice)—Do you mean to say, madam, that I am not always as good and kind as I am at this moment?

Outdone.

Jones—Yes, sir; that boy of mine is a wonderful piano player. Why, he can play with his toes! Brown—How old is he? Jones—Fifteen. Brown—I've got a boy at home who can play with his toes, and he is only one year old.

Liquidizing.

"Dry work this speechmaking."

"Well, I've drunk in every word you've said."

"Ah! Making a draft of my speech?"—Lippincott's.

DR. DIXON DEFENDS DAIRY FARMERS

Declares Milk Often Becomes Polluted After Leaving Their Hands on Way to Consumer.

SANITARY LAWS ARE BROKEN

"Don't let's put too much blame on the farmers," says State Health Commissioner Dixon in discussing the question of a pure milk supply, a problem that is troubling so many municipalities throughout Pennsylvania.

"As an old farmer myself who has led the reapers around the wheat fields swinging a cradle and then in the evening milking my share of the cows, I am naturally favorable to the dairy farmer, but it is the close study of actual conditions that convinces me that the first disease germs often, perhaps most frequently, get into the milk after it has passed out of the farmer's control.

"The farmer appreciates more today than ever the necessity of keeping milk clean. He knows that if it reaches the market sweet and pure the demand will be increased. He is up against a difficult task to make money out of his milk dairy when he has to constantly buy new cattle to take the place of those that have gone dry, become sick or died.

Dairyman's Problems.

"He must produce or purchase food for them, keep up the stable, pay his help, constantly replenish his supply of pans, buckets, etc., and haul this milk over all kinds of roads, through all sorts of weather and then receive for all this 4 or 4½ cents a quart from the dealer.

"The milk often begins to receive pollution on the railroad, when an attendant takes off the lid of a milk can, helps himself to a drink and then replaces the lid, drippings of milk which have reached his lips going back into the can.

"Does this sound like an exaggeration? Let me cite you a case. I remember a baggagemaster who once called upon me for medical advice. I found him suffering with pulmonary tuberculosis. When I advised him to drink plenty of milk he informed me that he was drinking a great deal of it. He said he hauled milk in his baggage car and that he was in the habit of drinking out of the lids of the cans.

"At the stations and along the streets the milk dealers often purchase from each other. The purchaser sticks his finger into the milk and then into his mouth to determine the sweetness and then into the second can until he tests as many cans of milk as he proposes purchasing.

Unsanitary Methods.

"Only a few days ago a gentleman came into my office to tell me he had just witnessed his own milk man hand a street cleaner a drink of milk contained in the lid of his can and then replace the lid.

"I have witnessed over and over again milk men collect bottles from their customers, poke the index finger in the mouth of one and the thumb in the other to carry the bottles to his wagon. Trusting that they had been properly cleansed by the housewife, the bottles were at once refilled, caps taken out of a pocket which also contained a handkerchief and then these bottles of milk were delivered to the next customers. It is not worth while to enumerate other instances to make my point clear, that is, we must not confine ourselves to the dairy farm in looking for conditions that render milk impure. Our municipalities throughout the state will have to keep their eyes open to the way in which the dealers and others are handling the milk after it has left the farmer's care."

Don't Break Down.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause break-downs. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run-down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters the matchless, tonic medicine Mrs. J. E. Van de Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain, for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. Satisfaction positively guaranteed. 50c, at all druggists.

The Lash of a Fiend

would have been about as welcome to A Cooper, of Oswego, N. Y., as a merciless lung-racking cough that defied all remedies for years. "It was most troublesome at night," he writes, "nothing helped me till I used Dr. King's New Discovery which cured me completely. I never cough at night now." Millions know its matchless merit for stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, sore lungs, la-grippe, asthma, hemorrhage, croup, whooping cough, or hayfever. It relieves quickly and never fails to satisfy. A trial convinces 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. It's positively guaranteed by all druggists.

TEDDY TURNED DOWN BERRY MEN

Keystone Political Game That Failed to Work.

ROOSEVELT JOLTED BOLTERS

Former President, Instead of Aiding Insurgents, Lauded Administration by Pennsylvania Republicans.

Probably the most disappointing incident of the state campaign to the managers of the Keystone Party was the failure of Roosevelt to comply with their request and make some reference in his Pittsburg speech to Pennsylvania political conditions that would aid the Berry candidacy for governor.

A special committee of Keystoners was delegated to get in touch with the ex-president as soon as he arrived and urge him to directly or indirectly help their cause in his speech. The committee got a complete turn down.

They quickly learned that Roosevelt was not going to be a party in any way to help along the campaign of a Democrat for governor of the stalwart Republican Keystone State.

He was perfectly familiar with Berry's free silver and Bryanite record before the Keystone committeemen broached the subject, and not only did they get absolutely no encouragement from Teddy, but he gave them a body blow when he did make his speech by lauding the record of the Republican party in this state.

Mayor William A. Magee, who is at the head of the Republican organization of Allegheny, and upon whom devolved the duty of making the speech of presentation to the great Pittsburg audience, was, with other stalwart Republicans upon the platform, greatly elated over the utterances of Roosevelt upon that occasion.

In touching upon Pennsylvania conditions, the former president in part said:

"And now, friends, in closing, I want to call your attention to the fact that there is not anything at all to be depressed about in present conditions in America. We have got lots of good to our credit.

"You have some admirable laws on the statute books here in Pennsylvania. Take the way that you care for your schools—your compulsory law—your appropriations for the schools—your appropriations for school books, so that every boy and girl in Pennsylvania can get an education. And now, you are administering that law so that their parents and nobody else can cheat them out of the education. You have on the statute books the eight hour law as regards the employes of the government. You have laws prohibiting child labor and minimizing the number of hours and regulating the labor of women—laws that have not in the past been always executed as they should be, but which I think are steadily being better executed from all that I can hear.

"You have made excellent forestry laws, excellent conservation laws, in connection with your forests and waters. It is a great sum of positive achievement of which you should be proud. But it is better not to be proud of it than to feel that, because you have done pretty well, you are therefore to be excused from doing anything more. Do not forget that you won't stand still. If you do not go forward you will slip backward. Now so it is about America as a whole."

These words of recognition of the splendid administration of the affairs of the commonwealth under Republican officials were sincerely and earnestly spoken.

"There is no reason whatever why Mr. Berry should receive a single Republican vote in this campaign," says the Scranton Truth. "He was an eager seeker for the Democratic nomination and is now a candidate because he didn't get it. In the dispute between William J. Bryan and Colonel Guffey, when the Nebraskan tried to eliminate the latter from Pennsylvania control, Berry sided with Bryan and showed himself an enthusiastic supporter of the Bryan brand of national Democratic politics, although it is now well known that he should have stood by Guffey in that contest.

"At no time has Mr. Berry manifested any friendship for Republican principles or policies in state or nation, and he is not, therefore, entitled to Republican support, however zealously he may masquerade as an 'independent.' He must not be permitted to sail under false colors. He is a Democratic bolter from the Allentown convention and a candidate because he failed to secure the nomination of that convention for governor.

"Mr. Berry's presence in the field can have no other result than the election of John K. Tener by the largest majority ever received by a Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania."

Citizens of Pennsylvania with a knowledge of what has been done by the Republican party and with the pledges of John K. Tener, the Republican nominee for governor, that he will seek to follow the policies and the methods of Edwin S. Stuart, it is predicted, are going to show their confidence and faith in the Republican party and its standard bearer by rolling up a great Republican majority at the election on Nov. 8.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, so as to consolidate the courts of common pleas of Allegheny County.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby, proposed, in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:—

That section six of article five be amended, by striking out the said section, and inserting in place thereof the following:

Section 6. In the county of Philadelphia all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the district courts and courts of common pleas, subject to such changes as may be made by this Constitution or by law, shall be in Philadelphia vested in five distinct and separate courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, composed of three judges each. The said courts in Philadelphia shall be designated respectively as the court of common pleas number one, number two, number three, number four, and number five, but the number of said courts may be by law increased, from time to time, and shall be in like manner designated by successive numbers. The number of judges in any of said courts, or in any county where the establishment of an additional court may be authorized by law, may be increased, from time to time, and whenever such increase shall amount in the whole to three, such three judges shall compose a distinct and separate court as aforesaid, which shall be numbered as aforesaid. In Philadelphia all suits shall be instituted in the said courts of common pleas without designating the number of the said court, and the several courts shall distribute and apportion the business among them in such manner as shall be provided by rules of court, and each court, to which any suit shall be thus assigned, shall have exclusive jurisdiction thereof, subject to change of venue, as shall be provided by law.

In the county of Allegheny all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas, composed of all the judges in commission in said courts. Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings at law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts, and shall be subject to such changes as may be made by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law. The president judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law. The number of judges in said court may be by law increased from time to time. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding its adoption.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:—

Amendment to Article Nine, Section Eight.

Section 1. Amend section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania which reads as follows:—

"Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding seven per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation," so as to read as follows:—

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation, except that any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes, or for the construction of wharves and docks, or the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of a system of wharves and docks, as public improvements, owned or to be owned by said city and county of Philadelphia, and which shall yield to the city and county of Philadelphia current net revenue in excess of the interest on said debt or debts and of the annual installments necessary for the cancellation of said debt or debts, may be excluded in ascertaining the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to become otherwise indebted: Provided, That a sinking fund for their cancellation shall be established and maintained.

GREAT CROWDS GREET TENER

Candidate For Governor Gets Fine Ovations.

MAKES BIG HIT WITH VOTERS

Republican Standard Bearer Frankly Meets Live Issues and Is Assured of Splendid Victory.

John K. Tener and his associates on the Republican state ticket are being given splendid receptions and ovations on their trip through the state.

The meetings have in almost every instance been even larger than those witnessed in the triumphal tour of Edwin S. Stuart four years ago.

Keen interest in the success of the campaign and enthusiasm for the nominees, manifested in every county that has been visited, must foreshadow a great victory in November.

Pennsylvania Republicans are harmonious and aggressive, and with the Democracy divided between Grim and Berry, the indications are that the majority for John K. Tener for governor will be the largest given to any nominee for that office in this state in recent years.

Believes In Education.

For his clean-cut, manly and frank discussions of the issues of the campaign, Candidate Tener has been commended upon every hand. He does not hesitate to express himself freely upon all questions and is taking the people into his confidence as he goes from place to place, meeting the voters face to face, and grasping them by the hand and impressing all with his candor and sincerity.

In chatting with a well known educator the other day, Mr. Tener said:

"I firmly believe that education, coupled with good sound common sense, will do more to obliterate the thought of anticipated and imaginary dangers in the future than any other agency that can be invoked. I am a firm and everlasting believer in the cause of education. It has served where modern equipment in the hands of a well-drilled militant force would have been without avail and has done more to make the United States the wonderful nation that she is than anything we have ever known.

"Build school houses, have competent instructors, interest the youthful minds, and happiness and clean, godly lives can be the only result."

At Home Among Wage Earners.

During the course of an address to coal miners of Schuylkill county, Mr. Tener said:

"It has been my misfortune that I have never visited this section of Pennsylvania before, and while I am not a stranger in a community of this kind, because I come from the soft coal region of the Monongahela river. I live with and associate with men who work in the mines and in the shops of that great industrial district. On the river that flows past my door more than 9,000,000 tons of coal are floated every year, so that in coming here and seeing you, the same kind of people that we have at home, in the same line of work, I feel quite at home. I know that your lives and your thoughts and your aims are very much like ours at home and your political belief ought to be like ours at home. We are Republicans there because we believe that through the Republican party we receive the greatest benefit.

"My neighbors are the workmen of the United Mine Workers' Union, and out there every man that works in the mine is a union man. The United Mine Workers' Union has set a high standard for themselves and for all union labor, in my opinion, because whenever they sign a contract with the operators they see to it that it is kept, so that we live in harmony and peace."

The farmers of the stae know they have a friend in John K. Tener.

While a member of congress he was a stout champion of every measure that came before that body designed to advance the interests of the granger and dairyman.

Party Organization Essential.

Candidate Tener's firm belief in the importance of maintaining a party organization through which to promote policies and fix responsibilities of government has been expressed on more than one occasion since the canvass was inaugurated.

Upon this question a few days ago he said:

"I believe in government in this country by political parties. I believe that the best results are secured when there are two great parties divided on civic and economic questions.

"I have not in the past nor do I now believe that any permanent good can be accomplished by those spasmodic movements resulting in the organization of additional parties, whose careers are but temporary and which have signally failed to accomplish the purposes for which they were ostensibly brought into existence.

"I do not only believe in government by political parties, but I believe in party regularity. Each voter should take an active interest in the management of his own party, in the selection of a ticket and in the writing of the platform. Should conditions arise within his party which do not appeal to him he should earnestly strive to have them eliminated."

NEWS FROM MAINE PLEASED BERRY

Gubernatorial Nominee Elated Over Democratic Victory.

HE ATTACKED TARIFF BILL

Independent Republicans Quit Keystone Party, Disgruntled With the Bryanite Outfit.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Sept. 20.

An exhibition of partisanship which startled and disgusted the few independent Republicans present was given by William H. Berry at a meeting in this city a few nights ago, when the Keystone Party nominee, unable to suppress his jubilation, spoke exultantly of "the good news from Maine."

Not only did he express intense gratification over the Democratic victory in the Pine Tree State, but he followed this up with an attack upon the Republican tariff and the Taft administration, which so incensed Republicans that the little coterie that were there left the hall, determined to have nothing further to do with his candidacy.

Yes, Berry had "heard the good news from Maine," and his old-time Democratic spirits were revived; he could not help but rejoice in a triumph for a party with which he fought for so many years. While he is a bolter this year from the Guffey Democratic state organization, Berry still holds allegiance to the national Democracy, particularly to the Bryan wing of that party, for which at Denver he deserted Guffey for Bryan—Guffey who had done so much for him nominated him and financed his campaign for state treasurer, and even though he was then getting $8000 a year salary from the state treasury, loaned him $15,000 upon collateral which when put up at public sale realized but $700, and then suit had to be entered in court in an effort to obtain payment of the balance, $14,300, with not a dollar's worth of interest paid upon the loan.

While Berry's ingratitude to Guffey is not a matter of public concern, and is not a factor in the present political campaign, Berry's adherence to the Democracy, his intense loyalty to the Bryan leadership, is the subject of widespread comment.

Could Not Stand Berry.

In this city, especially, Berry's nomination upon the independent ticket at once estranged thousands from that movement who might under certain conditions have been inclined to favor an independent Republican for governor. Others who at first declined to say what attitude they would take in the campaign, have since come out squarely in favor of the full Republican ticket.

This was the logical outcome of the revelations as to Berry's financial dealings with Guffey, followed by Berry's erratic course upon the stump, his flambouyant and rambling oratory culminating in his sensational and uncalled for attack upon the newspaper men of the state simply because they published the facts relating to his getting money from Guffey, the same Guffey who was himself a heavy borrower from banks in Pittsburg holding state funds, of which Berry was the custodian for the taxpayers, and Berry's gratuitous insult to every Republican is his public felicitations with the triumphant Democrats of Maine and his denunciation of the framers of the new tariff act, in which the industrial, farming and business interests and the welfare of every wage earner of the Keystone State were safeguarded by the two Republican United States senators and all of the Republican members of the lower house from Pennsylvania.

Berry's admission at a public meeting here "that there was not a dollar in the treasury of the Keystone Party" simply emphasized the fact that substantial men, men of affairs, property owners and business men, to whom the importance of electing a safe and sane man to the governorship appeals most strongly, will have nothing to do with his candidacy or the hybrid combination of disappointed and cast-off politicians back of the Keystone Party.

Desertions on Every Side.

Berry talks and acts like a man who knows he has not got a chance to win the governorship. He admitted in his West Philadelphia speech last week that when he accepted the nomination he had no idea of being elected.

Developments since the Keystone ticket was put in the field all show that his candidacy has been constantly getting weaker rather than stronger.

Desertions of independent Republicans and Democrats from the Berry movement are noted every day. Resignations from Keystone Party committees are being announced on every hand, and newspapers which gave encouragement to his cause at the outset have since either turned in for Tener, the Republican, or Grim, the regular Democratic nominee.

While Berry still declares he is a Democrat, there are not a half dozen Democratic newspapers in the state now favoring his election, and there are about a like number of so-called independent newspapers for [illegible]
